

Making San Francisco Bay Better

DREDGING AND REGIONAL SEDIMENT MANAGEMENT INTERNSHIP

Founded in 1965, the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission (BCDC) is the federally designated state coastal management agency for the San Francisco Bay. BCDC has regulatory and planning authority over development in San Francisco Bay and along the Bay's nine-county shoreline. The award-winning agency is seeking an enthusiastic Dredging and Regional Sediment Management Intern to work at our San Francisco office.

The Dredging and Regional Sediment Management Intern will assist the Dredging Program Manager with writing dredging permits and related documents, communicating with permittees, consultants and other Bay managers, and attending and participating in dredging-related meetings. The intern will also review and conduct planning and technical studies related to BCDC's Regional Sediment Management project and attend regional sediment management meetings.

Essential Duties:

- Research, analyze and write documents and permits related to dredging and regional sediment management.
- Attend various meetings and report on outcomes.

Desired Qualifications:

- Education background and/or work experience in coastal/wetland science and/or coastal management, or related fields.
- Technical knowledge of coastal and wetland processes and San Francisco Bay environmental issues.
- Ability to write clearly and concisely, work with different stakeholder groups and work independently.
- Experience with GIS software
- Professional experience in planning, managing or regulating uses of land or water or analyzing environmental impacts of development or one year experience in graduate school in a related field is a plus.

About the Position:

BCDC is seeking a Dredging and Regional Sediment Management Intern to start in May 2010. This position can be filled as a Student Assistant, Graduate Student Assistant or Environmental Services Intern, depending on the level of education and experience of the incumbent. The salary range for this position is $8.13 - $15.72 per hour depending on the classification at which the position is filled. Due to budget constraints, your work time after June 30th or the remainder of the internship would be unpaid and the intern would be considered a volunteer. Public transportation subsidy up to $65 per month may be available.

Eligibility:

Currently enrolled in college, or enrolled in graduate school, or college graduate with a major in urban, regional or environmental planning, ecology, marine biology, geology, geography, coastal management, environmental science, natural resource management, public policy or a related field.

Applying for the Job:

Applications will be accepted until the position is filled. The job opening is at the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission (BCDC); however, the California Coastal Commission (CCC) handles the BCDC personnel work. All applications will be reviewed and only the most qualified candidates will be interviewed.

To apply, please send your resume references, writing sample and Application Form #678 (indicate Dredging and Regional Sediment Management Intern in the Job Title section on the application form) to:
